What is a cookie?

A "cookie" is information which is stored on your computer if you agree to accept the cookies. You can amend your cookies but if you do so it may limit you accessing certain areas and features of the website. Cookies record how you navigate your way around a website so that, when you revisit that website, it can present bespoke options based on the information stored in reference to your last visit. Cookies are also used to analyse traffic and for advertising and marketing purposes.

Cookies are used by practically all websites and do not harm your system.

We are required to obtain your consent for all non-essential cookies used on our website. You can block cookies (including essential cookies) at any time by clicking on the banner at the footer of the website. However, if you use your browser settings to block essential cookies you may not be able to access all or parts of our site.

How we use cookies

a. 'session cookies' which are stored only temporarily during a browsing session in order to allow normal use of the system and are deleted from your device when the browser is closed;

b. 'persistent cookies' which are read only by the Site, saved on your computer for a fixed period and are not deleted when the browser is closed. Such cookies are used where we need to know who you are for repeat visits, for example to allow us to store your preferences for the next sign-in;

c. 'third-party cookies' which are set by other online services who run content on the page you are viewing, for example by third-party analytics companies who monitor and analyse our web access.

Cookies do not contain any information that personally identifies you, but Personal Information that we store about you may be linked, by us, to the information stored in and obtained from cookies.

Here is a list of cookies which we use on our website;
